

ABSTRACT

A method of fabricating a capacitor is described. A dielectric layer is formed over a substrate. An upper electrode having multiple openings therein is formed over the dielectric layer. Then, a doping step is performed to the substrate through the openings to form a single doped region as a lower electrode in the substrate under the upper electrode.